Datamsa Multiple System Atrophy Patient Data Report Bill Sydnor,2015-12-02 Multiple System Atrophy MSA is a rare degenerative progressive neurological disease so named because its signs and symptoms affect multiple systems of the body There is no effective treatment and no cure Because of its rarity the experiences of MSA patients are seldom heard With the input of fellow patients and individuals affected by MSA caregivers loved ones of those lost I developed a survey to assess our collective experiences Several drafts of the survey were developed reviewed adjusted and edited over a period of months In March 2014 I launched dataMSA in recognition of MSA Awareness Month March The dataMSA survey was open to all who may have been affected by the disease patients caregivers and loved ones speaking for those lost to MSA At the time of this printing nearly 350 people from across the globe have added their experiences to the dataMSA collection The purpose of this collection is to raise the voices of MSA patients to advance research and education to enhance treatment and to find a cure for this debilitating disease 100% of the profits from the sale of this book will be donated to the MSA Coalition Datamsa

Surveys for Multiple System Atrophy Bill Sydnor,2015-12-07 When I couldn t find patient driven information about MSA and when my doctors didn t have a lot of information about patient experiences I set out to create a way patients could share their experiences dataMSA has collected information from nearly 350 persons worldwide who have been affected by MSA patients caregivers loved ones to those lost The data has been shared with researchers at UCSF Vanderbilt Mayo Clinic UF and other centers This text is an invaluable resource for health care providers support staff members and others who seek information about multiple system atrophy No revenue is collected from the surveys and patients remain confidential 100% of the profits from this book will be donated to the MSA Coalition to support research for a cure Thank you for helping us raise our MSA voices Bill Sydnor dataMSA creator Multiple System Atrophy Gregor K. Walburn,Charles Frank Ide,2010 Multiple System Atrophy MSA is a sporadic neurodegenerative disease with varied clinical phenotypes that include Parkinsonism and cerebellar and autonomic dysfunction Glial xytoplasmic inclusions GCIs aggregates of the presynaptic protein insert alpha synuclein appear in oligodendrocytes in MSA In this study the amount of alpha synuclein was measured in multiple regions of the rostral pons using quantitative image analysis Alpha synuclein was significantly increased inthe dorsal most tract in adjacent non pontocerebellar fiber tracts corticopontine corticobulbar corticospinal and in the central tegmental tract of MSA patients compared to controls The distribution of alpha synuclein in these specific tracts is consistent with pontocerebellar involvement in MSA In addition the amount of alpha synuclein in the four analyzed regions varied amongst MSA patients and may be associated with the severity of specific symptoms in different patients Increased amounts of alpha synuclein in the dorsal most pontocerebellar fiber tract correlated with changes in global gene expression most notably changes in genes associated with oligodendrocyte and mitochondrial functions the inflammatory stress response and protein degradation processes Understanding Multiple System Atrophy (Msa) Dr Ryland Nielsen,2025-09-19 Have you ever wondered what it truly means to live with Multiple System Atrophy MSA Do you know how early recognition of symptoms could change the course of daily life for patients and caregivers Are you seeking practical guidance to navigate complex neurological challenges with confidence Would you like to understand how to maintain independence while managing progressive symptoms Have you wished for clear step by step strategies to support loved ones without feeling overwhelmed Do you want to uncover lifestyle diet and therapeutic approaches that can genuinely improve quality of life If any of these questions resonate with you UNDERSTANDING MULTIPLE SYSTEM ATROPHY MSA is the guide you cannot afford to miss Authored solely by me Dr Ryland Nielsen this book is a comprehensive accessible and practical roadmap for patients families and caregivers facing the challenges of MSA My aim in writing this book has always been to enlighten readers about living well through informed choices lifestyle adjustments and dietary strategies helping you navigate MSA with clarity confidence and hope Inside this book you will discover A clear and straightforward explanation of what MSA is including types causes risk factors and how it differs from other neurodegenerative disorders Early warning signs and symptoms to recognize so you can

Cd68 Immune Cell Involvement in Purkinje Cell Degeneration in the Cerebellum of Multiple System Atrophy Patients Ashley A. Bostic,2012 Multiple system atrophy MSA is a sporadic neurodegenerative disease with unknown etiology involving symptoms of Parkinson s disease autonomic failure and olivopontocerebellar atrophy To define a possible relationship between immune cells and loss of Purkinje cells in MSA I measured incidence of CD68 positive microglia macrophages directly associated with calbindin Purkinje cell bodies and or their axons and dendrites MSA patients showed fewer Purkinje cell bodies p 0 001 dendrites p 0 044 and axons p 0 002 and decreased area of staining for calbindin in cerebellar tracts p 0 027 Controls patients had larger and more circular Purkinje cell bodies p 0 002 p 0 01 respectively A greater density of CD68 staining directly associated with calbindin stained profiles occurred only in MSA cerebellar tracts p 0 043 These results indicate that the loss of Purkinje cell bodies and their processes are not due to direct spatial association with CD68 cells

Elevated Expression of Adaptive Immune Proteins in the Cerebellum and Pons of Patients with Multiple System Atrophy Karen Van Wagner, 2013 Multiple System atrophy is a progressive neurodegenerative disease presenting as Parkinson's like with Ataxia and autonomic failure Disease progression is thought to be at least in part a result of aggregated misfolded alpha synuclein protein associated with myelin degradation and oligodendrocyte cell death My hypothesis is that immune proteins including cytotoxic T cell marker CD8alpha cytokine IL 12 and antigen presenting molecule CLEC4F are involved in disease progression in an adaptive immune response similar to Multiple Sclerosis In this study I found elevated adaptive immune proteins in fiber tracts of MSA pons and cerebellar tissues when compared to control tissues Compared to control patients CD8alpha protein is significantly upregulated in the cerebellar and pontocerebellar tracts of MSA patients Elevated expression of CD8alpha and IL 12 may be a commonality between MS and MSA
