Growth Rings Barbara Wyckoff-Baird, 2005 American Book Publishing Record, 2004 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2005 Sustaining Nonprofit Performance Paul C. Light, 2004-08-31 The nonprofit sector survives because it has a self-exploiting work force wind it up and it will do more with less until it just runs out But at some point the spring must break America s nonprofit organizations face a difficult present and an uncertain future Money is tight Workloads are heavy employee turnover is high and charitable donations have not fully rebounded from the recent economic downturn Media and political scrutiny remains high and public confidence in nonprofits has yet to recover from its sharp decline in the wake of well publicized scandals In a recent survey only 14 percent of respondents believed that nonprofits did a very good job of spending money wisely nearly half said that nonprofit leaders were paid too much compared to 8 percent who said they earned too little Yet the nonprofit sector has never played a more important role in American life As a generation of nonprofit executives and board members approaches retirement it becomes increasingly important to ensure that their organizations are prepared to continue their missions that they are built to last in a supremely challenging environment Paul Light renowned expert on public service and nonprofit management strongly argues for capacity building measures as a way to sustain and improve the efforts of the nonprofit sector With innovative data and insightful analysis he demonstrates how nonprofits that invest in technology training and strategic planning can successfully advance their goals and restore public faith in their mission and capabilities He explains the ways in which restoration of that faith is critical to the survival of nonprofits another important reason for improving and then sustaining performance Organizations that invest adequately in their infrastructure and long term planning are the ones that will survive and continue to serve
