Narrating the Soviet Era in Russian School History Textbooks Olga Konkka, 2025-09-03 This study focuses on how Russian history textbooks published between 1992 and 2021 dealt with the topic of the Soviet period 1917 1991 Representations of this part of Russia's past in school manuals have provoked vivid debates and bolstered government intervention in the field while a gradual shift towards a less critical narrative of the USSR in more recent textbooks is often presented as directed by Vladimir Putin This study combines research into these texts and inquiry into those who write publish approve or criticize them Bringing together these perspectives provides a more complex view of school textbooks as final products of both top down and bottom up processes This volume is aimed at postgraduates researchers and academics specializing in Soviet history contemporary Russian politics and society and history education and textbooks

The End of Loser Liberalism Dean Baker, 2011 Progressives need a fundamentally new approach to politics They have been losing not just because conservatives have so much more money and power but also because they have accepted the conservatives framing of political debates They have accepted a framing where conservatives want market outcomes whereas liberals want the government to intervene to bring about outcomes that they consider fair This puts liberals in the position of seeming to want to tax the winners to help the losers This loser liberalism is bad policy and horrible politics Progressives would be better off fighting battles over the structure of markets so that they don't redistribute income upward This book describes some of the key areas where progressives can focus their efforts in restructuring the market so that more income flows to the bulk of the working population rather than just a small elite
