Healing Corrections Chris Innes, 2015-05-22 Unlike critics who see the organizational cultures of prisons jails and community correction agencies as a problem that needs to be fixed with simple sounding reforms Chris Innes argues instead that these types of organizational cultures are adaptive and a source of strength that can be used to genuinely transform them He shows how operational priorities including safety and security become much more difficult to sustain when organizational cultures become fragmented into disconnected subcultures To transform an organizational culture he argues this fragmentation must be healed by changing the patterns of communication that make up the day to day reality of an organization s culture Innes advocates an innovative approach based on the skills and practices of dialogue He describes in detail how Dialogic Practice can be used to transform organizational cultures through an implementation process that begins with the leadership and cascades through the organization as an expanding circle as staff are trained and become engaged in the process Innes draws upon the research and policy literature in several fields the contemporary national debate on the role of the justice system in American society and his own experience during the last forty years in correctional research and policy and in working directly with correctional agencies This innovative approach to transforming organizational cultures will interest correctional decision makers administrators researchers and graduate students in criminal justice advocates and others who manage mission driven human services organizations

Children's Privacy

Protection and Parental Empowerment Act of 1996 United States. Congress. House. Committee on the Judiciary. Subcommittee on Crime, 1997 This hearing examined issues related to H R 3508 the Children s Privacy Protection and Parental Empowerment Act of 1996 which prohibits the sale of personal information about children without parents written consent and the use of prisoner labor to process personal information about children The Act also establishes a criminal penalty for exchanging information about a child while knowing or having reason to believe that the information will be used to harm the child Witnesses included representatives from the direct mail industry and professional organizations a public policy research group a child protection organization and a university Marc Klass father of murder victim Polly Klass New Jersey Representative Bob Franks and a law enforcement officer Proponents of the legislation contended that self regulation has not succeeded in establishing adequate privacy safeguards Commercial list companies are compiling an elaborate data base on every American child these data are available for purchase by any interested party and over the Internet Such availability invades children s privacy and creates a potentially dangerous situation for them because such information is available to pedophiles and especially because prison labor is often used to process consumer surveys into list data Opponents to the proposed legislation questioned that commercial mailing lists could be used by pedophiles to locate victims and contended that the legislation would restrict university identification of potential students limit distribution of educational materials such as children s books and would interfere with military recruitment Appendices contain additional statements letters or materials submitted KDFB
