Deped Procurement Manual:

Philippines Asian Development Bank,2013-12-01 Proper public procurement practices directly reflect good governance Transparent and effective procurement practices minimize expenditure and create opportunity Procurement is an enormous component in the process by which governments build infrastructure such as schools and hospitals It involves the management of significant amounts of money and is therefore often the cause for allegations of corruption and government inefficiency The difference between getting public procurement right and doing it wrong has the potential to be either highly rewarding or highly damaging In some nations reforms implemented to improve the efficiency of public procurement have resulted in savings of 1% of a country s gross domestic product One can see why public procurement is so significant to the development of a country and its people Philippines Philippines,2003 Financial Management Ernel Merano PhD,2020-05-05 A professional teacher raised from the Philippines and graduated with degrees in Doctor of Philosophy in Education major in Educational Programs Management at Eastern Visayas State University Tacloban City last March 29 2017 Master of Arts in Education Major in Administration and Supervision at Western Leyte College of Ormoc City last March 21 2012 Bachelor of Science in Industrial Education in Elementary at Southern Leyte State University Main Campus Sogod Southern Leyte last March 24 2006 Passed the Licensure Examination for Teachers last August 2007 at South Western University Cebu City Presently working as a Teaching Faculty in A soud Global School Duqm Sultanate of Oman

Educational Governance and Community Development: Evidence-Based Decision-Making for Public and School Leadership Hja. Haipa Abdurahim Salain,2026-03-05 Education does not operate in isolation Schools are embedded in communities shaped by public institutions local cultures political realities and the everyday decisions of leaders who must balance ideals with constraints In the Philippines where decentralization diversity and inequality coexist educational outcomes are closely linked to governance quality and community development strength This book begins from a simple but demanding premise better learning and social outcomes require better decisions decisions grounded in evidence guided by integrity and made with communities rather than for them Educational Governance and Community Development Evidence Based Decision Making for Public and School Leadership is written for school heads supervisors division and regional leaders LGU education focal persons and development practitioners who work at the intersection of education and local governance It is also intended for graduate students and emerging leaders who seek to understand not only what policies say but how governance actually works on the ground The book responds to a recurring gap in practice while leaders are expected to plan implement and account for results they are often given fragmented tools compliance heavy guidance or abstract theories that are difficult to apply in real Philippine settings This volume bridges the gap by integrating three domains often treated separately educational governance community development and evidence use Governance is approached not merely as administration or control but as a set of ethical and relational practices that shape trust accountability and participation

Community development is a core responsibility of education leaders who recognize schools as local hubs that influence health livelihoods peace and social cohesion Evidence in turn is treated pragmatically not as perfect data or complex research designs but as good enough information that can responsibly inform decisions at different levels The chapters are deliberately structured to follow the real decision making cycle leaders face The book begins with foundational concepts of governance in the Philippine context clarifying roles principles and ethical obligations It then situates education within decentralization policy and accountability systems that shape what leaders can and cannot do From there the discussion expands to community development emphasizing context inclusion and trust building Subsequent chapters focus on evidence ecosystems diagnostics planning implementation and monitoring always with attention to feasibility equity and integrity The final chapter consolidates learning through case models tools and templates that leaders can adapt to their own contexts Throughout the book emphasis is placed on practical judgment rather than rigid formulas Leaders are encouraged to ask critical questions such as Whose voices are missing What data are sufficient for this decision Who benefits and who may be left behind How can accountability be strengthened without undermining learning and innovation By engaging these questions the book aims to cultivate evidence discipline not technocracy professionalism not detachment and responsiveness not short term compliance Ultimately this book is an invitation to lead differently It calls on education and public leaders to see governance as a moral and developmental practice to treat communities as partners and to use evidence as a tool for learning and improvement rather than mere reporting In doing so it hopes to contribute however modestly to schools and communities that are more inclusive resilient and capable of delivering meaningful outcomes for Filipino learners and citizens
